Other windowing systems Other windowing systems that include some form of key sequence identification include Microsoft Windows (80286 and newer versions) and macOS (10.4 and newer versions). Windows NT, Windows CE, and Windows Server 2000 (versions 4, 5, and 2000) also use a similar key sequence to unlock the feature. For example, the "Taskbar" is invoked by default when the Windows key is pressed; one can assign a new shortcut to the f678ea9f9e
